Concord College

Athens, West Virginia

Dedication

President Joseph F. Marsh, Jr.

We have seen him survey the campus . . . have seen the lights in his office burning late . . . have felt the impact of his work.

We have heard him speak of Concord . . . have watched him bear her criticism . . . have heard him being criticized . . . have seen him smile . . . have watched the problems being overcome.

We have sensed his pride in our institution . . . have borrowed from him a sense of pride in her past, strength in her present, and promise in her future . . . have shared his love for Concord . . . have benefitted from his dedication.

We wish to take this opportunity to express our thanks to that man for the things he has done for Concord . . . and for her students . . . to wish Concord and her president a bright future . . . to dedicate the '69 PINE TREE to our president, Joseph F. Marsh, Jr.

Through the shadows of that which was the beginning and by way of what will be tomorrow

I walked . . .

in my search to find.

Among the pines in sunshine, in snow, and in the always moving wind . . .

I struggled to learn a part of life.

I partied,

protested,

danced,

yelled, cried. . .

and pursued that which was to make me happy.

The years were my hour upon the stage.

"They were always offering ways and sometimes I followed. . .

I forced my mind to say yes

when my conscience whispered question.

I heard the call to conform . . .

but listened to those who said seek God find wisdom uphold freedom.

with these-

the ones who search and the ones who lead

-I continued my walk.

The land around me Beckoned and for a few minutes I pondered. . .

wondering if it were worth the effort.

My life revolved around friends and follies,

classes and campaigns,

a special someone,

a swinging sound . . .

the ridiculous, and the saddening.

Through rough or smooth my youth traveled on...

Long Day's Journey Into Night

by Eugene O'Neill

Her youngest son has the hope she has triumphed and won her battle; her oldest son is disappointed; a foghorn brings the reality of her wish to have been a concert pianist or to have continued her life in the convent . . .

MISS JUDI SMITH
as Mary Tyrone, the mother

H. C. Paul director of drama

He threw away a career as a great Shakespearian actor for the sake of money-making-melodramatic roles; as the day of the action is a day of crises for his family, he sees their past relived and their future clearly outlined . . .

MR. JAMES ELMORE
as James Tyrone, the father

He writes poems for a small town paper; the only hope of the family even though at times he desires death as much as the others; the report of tuberculosis reaches him but the hope of being cured makes him the only one not completely tragic . . .

MR. SEAN CUNNINGHAM
as Edmund, the younger brother

He is lazy, drinks, and associates with women like Fat Violet; jealousy causes him to try and drag his brother down with him . . .

MR. DANNY FLESHMAN
as Jamie, the elder brother

She is merely a maid in a summer home until she makes her first trip to the drugstore for Mary's dope; she watches each of the Tyrones try to escape as she confronts reality . . .

MISS VICTORIA RICHARDS
as Cathleen, the maid

Mary, while drugged, feels free to comment forcefully on the failings of others, yet she is never aware of her addiction. Whenever she blames anyone, as she is James here because his home for her is so different from her father's, she returns to the line "but you can't help what the past has made you" and forgives.

If the play can be said to have a climax, it is when Jamie in a state of drunkenness admits his jealousy of Edmund. From this point Edmund rises to a position of dominance and becomes the family's only hope despite all Jamie has done to prevent it.

Eugene O'Neill dedicated this play in 1941 to his wife Carlotta on their 12th wedding anniversary. He said, "I give you the original script of this play of old sorrow, written in tears and blood . . . I face my dead at last and write this play—write it with deep pity and understanding and forgiveness for all the four haunted Tyrones." The play is autobiographical.

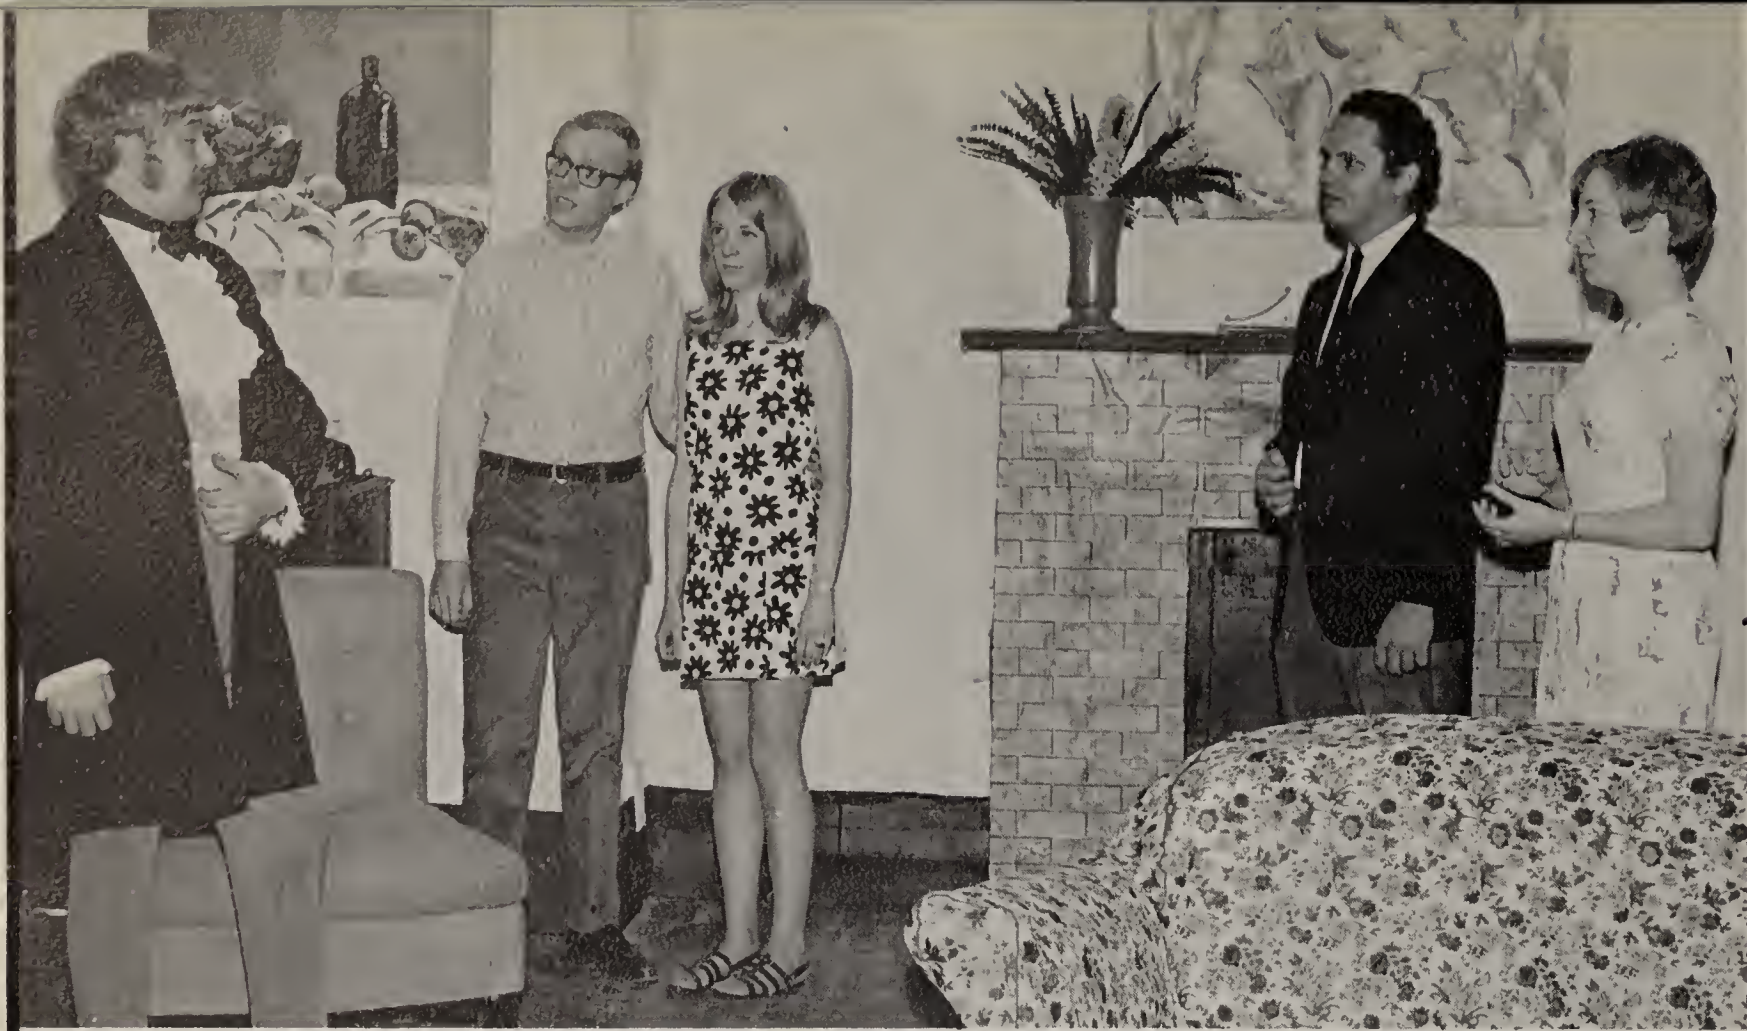

From the universities and colleges of the country, Concord was selected as one of the 191 semi-finals in the first American College Theatre Festival this year. Long Day's Journey Into Night was given as the competition play. The festival is sponsored by the American Educational Theatre Assoc., the American National Theatre Academy, Friends of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the Smithsonian Institute, American Airlines, and the Chrysler Corporation.

Mary won't admit that Edmund is really ill with tuberculosis. She feels if he is it is a case of God's punishing her. Here Mary declares to Edmund that she has lost her soul, and will only be whole again when her men lead good lives and she can stop feeling guilty.

Edmund, the younger son, is beginning to grow up and seeks his father. For the first time he understands him as a human. After joking, Edmund and his father talk seriously. His line, "Who wants to see life, as it is, if they can help it?" expresses the play's dominant theme.

Visit

Kreton: I hope the battle hasn't begun yet? Please take me to General Robert E. Lee. I have a message for him.

Roger: Battle? There isn't any General Lee staying here.

Kreton: I seem to have made a mistake. You see, I was on my way to the Battle of Bull Run when something went wrong with the machine.

Cat

Ellen: Were you talking to Rosemary?

Kreton: Oh, yes. We've had such a nice chat.

Ellen: What did she say?

Kreton: I wouldn't dare repeat it . . . Besides, it would lose too much in the translation.

Powers: This is a military establishment and must be run as such.

Aide: Yes sir, General!

To A Small Planet

Kreton: Dashing, isn't it? I'm a Confederate General. I was planning on wearing it at Bull Run!

Roger: Now, Tom boy, what is your considerate opinion of the present crisis?
Powers: Well, Roger, it doesn't look good.
Roger: Which winds up another half hour of "Roger Spelding Faces the News."
Mother-and-Father-America, have you had your milk today?

Conrad: What are you thinking about?
Ellen: A little diamond tiara . . .

Conrad: Not on my farm! Honey, be simple! We could have such a wonderful life over there on the farm, and you'd be right next door to your father, who hates me . . .

Ellen: And in the same room with that physically declined goat of yours who resents me!

Delton 4: The war has already been stopped.

Kreton: No one has any sense of fun. I was only trying to give enjoyment and pleasure to a number of savages—very sweet savages.

Delton 4: Kreton is a rarity among members of our planet. He is morally retarded, and, like a child, he regards this world as his plaything.

Tartuffe

by MOLIERE

Elmire Ellen Shaw
 MME. Pernelle Diane Hoff
 Cleante Bill Stark
 Flipote Mary Hill
 Bailiff (absent) J. Johnson

(Orgon to Mariane)
 Tartuffe is sure of Heaven's blessing
 And that's the only treasure worth possessing
 This match will bring you joys beyond all measure
 Your cup will overflow with every pleasure.
 Tartuffe is no young dandy,
 But, still his person
 (Dorine, aside)

Is as sweet as candy.

(Orgon)
 One more bit of impudence and gall.
 And I'll give that maid of yours a slap in the face
 Daughter, you shall accept, and with good grace.
 The husband I've selected . . .

(Mariane)
 He hates the sight of me, that's plain.
 I'll go, and so deliver him from pain.
 (Valere)
 She cannot bear my presence, I perceive.
 To spare her further torment, I shall leave.

(Dorine)
 You'll not escape, Sir; don't you try it.
 Come here, you two. Stop fussing, and be quiet.
 You're both great fools. Her sole desire, Valere,
 Is to be yours in marriage. To that I'll swear.
 He loves you only, and he wants no wife
 But you, Mariane, On that I'll stake my life.

(Tartuffe)

If you're still troubled, think of things this way:
No one shall know our joys, save us alone,
And there's no evil till the act is known;
It's scandal, Madame, which makes it an offense,
And it's no sin to sin in confidence.

(Elmire)

Open the door a little, and peek out;
I wouldn't want my husband poking about.

(Tartuffe)

Madame, all things have worked out to perfection;
I've given the neighboring rooms a full inspection;
No one's about; and now I may at last . . .

(Orgon)

Hold on, my passionate fellow, not so fast.
I should advise a little more restraint.
Well, so you thought you'd fool me, my dear saint!
How soon you wearied of the saintly life—
Wedding my daughter and coveting my wife!

(Tartuffe)

Ah, Brother, let him speak: you're being unjust.
Believe his story; the boy deserves your trust.
Why, after all, should you have faith in me?
How can you know what I might do, or be?
Is it on my good actions that you base
Your favor? Do you trust my pious face?
Ah, no, don't be deceived by hollow shows;
I'm far, alas, from being what men suppose;
Though the world takes me for a man of worth,
I'm truly the most worthless man on earth.

(Madame Pernelle)

No, no, a man of such surpassing piety
Could not do such a thing. You cannot shake me.
I don't believe it, and you shall not make me!

'69 PINE TREE

The last spin of the proportion-dial has been made, the last picture has been cropped, and layout and copy decisions are final. And believe it or not, but I'm still using the same 59¢ eraser and broken ruler with which I started last fall. It seems impossible that in about five minutes this page will be typed and the '69 Pine Tree will be completed. As I sit here, I try to remember where the time has gone.

1969 was a good year for Concord and the challenge to capture its many moods was not an easy one. No one except the Pine Tree editor could realize the extent of Concord activity. Many thanks to Mr. Buckey, our advisor, for always being on call. Jim Graham, Mr. Grubb, Dave Fouracre, and Bill Grinstead—you'll never know how much your pictorial coverage of the year is appreciated. Barbara, Vera, and Fran—you were great!

In 1913 Concord's first annual was published. The editor, on behalf of the staff, wrote, "We have fallen far below our aim, but how many reach their highest aim on a first attempt." This is the thirty-seventh book since then and there are still disappointments but we have given our best.

I give to you that which has been a constant part of me. Treat it with care; hopefully its pages will become invaluable as the years pass and you remember to remember.

The Maroon and Gray "Soul Team"

Alright, Children!!

The state college conference football season opener was played Sept. 14 in Concord's Callihan Stadium, and a scoring pass in the last 30 seconds of the game gave Bluefield State a 1-pt. victory over the Mt. Lions. What appeared as merely a stroke of luck for the opposition proved to be a foreshadowing as, despite continued hopes and high school spirit, Concord was to end the year with an 0-10 mark. Sixteen members of the team were dismissed at mid-season due to the violation of Athletic Dept. regulations. Individual pictures appear in this section of those who were members of the team the entire season. Of these 27. Jim Beckett, SB—5'9" 160 lb. Frosh, Mike Deal, Guard—5'9" 185 lb. Soph., Dave Dearing, Guard—6' 200 lb. Frosh, and Mike Jordan, Guard—6' 190 Frosh, did not have pictures available. Despite the record, several players landed positions on the state conference statistic records: Beckett set WVIAC records by accepting 16 passes in one game (Elon), and totaling 65 pass receptions; Al Parker with a 32.5 punting average ranked tenth in the state; and Tom Callis and Jack Rudiger tied for seventh place in pass receptions with 19 each.

Kappa Omicron Pi Sponsor Takes National Presidency

When the National Conclave for Kappa Omicron Phi meets this year, Concord's local chapter sponsor, Miss Mildred Dransfield, will be installed as president. The meeting will be held near Denver, Colorado. The Region II meeting was held at Concord in October, and that same month Concord's chapter installed the Carson-Newman College chapter at Jefferson City, Tennessee. Clothing is being collected by these honorary home economics majors for their national project of caring for needy families in Crossnore, North Carolina. Pictured are Miss Dransfield, Mrs. Lackey, Miss Miller; sponsors, Martha Shumaker, Marilyn Wood; vice-pres., Lora Fulton; treas., Linda Ferris; pres., Trudy Canterbury, June Spivey; sec., and Sue Hunter. Fairmont College hosted the state MENC and as two Concordians stepped down from state offices two more stepped up. Paul Kelly and Dianne Arrington had served as vice-pres. and sec. in 1968, and Dexter Bradbury and Lenwell Noble were elected as president and secretary for 1969. MENC entered into and placed in Homecoming float competition, held a costume party during Halloween, was responsible for receptions for all visiting artists on campus, attended as a group the Marine Band concert in Bluefield and "Fiddler on the Roof" in Charleston, and took the attendance banner at state convention. Pictured are Diane Pritchett, Cheryl Bailes, Cheryl Williams, Nancy Miller, Diane Arrington, Lenwell Noble, Leon Chambers, Thomas Wade, C. D. Taylor, Phil Fife, Jack Stewart, and Glen Burtner. WRA Hosts "Sock It To Me" Playday

The Women's Recreation Association began the year with a weiner roast in the picnic area and enthusiasm carried through the climax of the year, Play Day '69. "Sock It To Me" was the theme as over one hundred girls physical education departments of area high schools were invited to participate in an all day gathering featuring exhibitions and games. WRA members pictured are Row 1: Miss Swan, Kitty Maynor, Sandy Fleming; sec., Sue Whitaker, Jan Shadbolt; pres., Celested Linnehan, Row 2: Kathy Aiello, Linda Cullinan, Vicky Whitehill, Marsha Brumback, Row 3: Joan Grey, Drema Loudermilk, Sue Goebel, Sara Davis, Gail West, Nancy Teasley, Martha Sulic, Row 4: Irene Hurst, Susan Queitzsch, Janice Cardozo, Barbara Berg, Row 5: Suzanne Burr, Elizabeth Lucas, and Mary McKelvey.

Alumni

Fifty-year reunion was held by the Concord Normal School class of 1918 with the following members present: 1st Row, Ann Christie Scott, Pearl Boggess, Mary Honaker, Blanche Fanning Young, Ora Peters, Maude Wiley Erpps, Genevieve Faulkner Frazier, 2nd Row, Clyde Maxey, Pearl Redmon Basham, Winnie Baily, Nell Brown Bird, Helen Caperton, Clarice Johnson, and Joe Hill.

Class of 1918 Holds Reunion

Mrs. Pearl Redmond Basham of the 1918 class wears her unaltered graduation dress to the Alumni Day banquet.

Mr. Clyde Maxey, who died shortly after the reunion, is shown here responding in behalf of his 1918 graduating class at the banquet.

Alumni Awards

W. R. Cooke, chairman of the selection committee, presents to Mr. Ira Southern, a member of the 1948 graduating class, the "Alumnus of the Year" award. Mr. Southern is head of the southern West Virginia Regional Health Council. He has served as president of both the general Alumni Association, and the Ohio Chapter of Concord Alumni.

Mr. George Bryson, from the class of 1925, receives from Mr. Cooke the "Golden Alumni" award. Mr. Bryson is a past Superintendent of McDowell County Schools.

Class of '43 Holds Reunion

Members of the 1943 class returning to Concord for their 25th reunion were Rev. Alvin Young, Mrs. Josephine Keatley White, Mrs. Elizabeth Young Barley, Mrs. Eleanor Phillips Ball, Mrs. Mamie Keaton Dickenson, Mrs. Francis Cooper Scyphers, Mrs. Mary Lucille Goode Hartman, Victor Pisego, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Cofer.

Guests of the Presidents Club of the Alumni Association who were in attendance at their annual banquet held at the Princeton Holiday Inn are Mrs. Ira Southern, Mrs. William Estep, Ira Southern, President Marsh, Victor Foti, who presided over this meeting, William Estep, Alumni Assoc. Field Director, and Cloyd Armbrister.

Alumni Association Activities

Left is Alumni Day Banquet speaker, Mr. George W. Bryson, with W. R. Cooke, Alumni Association treasurer, and Jesse Ramsey, Alumni Association president.

An estimated four hundred and fifty alumni returned to Concord for June 1, 1968 celebration of Alumni Day. Shown here are participants who directed the program: President Marsh, Mr. Jesse Ramsey, Alumni Association president, Mr. William Estep, field director, Victor Foti, past president, Dr. Cloyd Armbrister, Executive Secretary, and Mr. Glen Callihan, vice-president.

Students

Seniors

1969 brought 1800 students inside the gates of the "College Friendly on the Campus Beautiful" representing twenty-five states, Malaysia, and Guam. There was never a bunch that could go out as much, scream as much, poke in as much food, sleep as much, laugh as much, cram as much, or love life as much. For Seniors it was giving Tuesdays up to Seminar, presenting Senior recitals and art shows, and meeting that final challenge, the Professional Block. They held their heads up to a hard world with determination that Scarlett O'Hara in the '69 release of "Gone With The Wind" could only match; they questioned the marriage of Jackie Kennedy; and they were the first to bow their heads as the flag went to half mast honoring Dwight Eisenhower. After years of keeping step now they break rank and go their own ways. Rod McKuen puts it best when he says, "There are golden apples to be picked. And green hills to climb. And meadows to run when you're young."

Juniors

They are the ones who, because they suddenly realize there isn't a long time left, begin to notice and mark down any significant happening of the year. They remember classes being dismissed because of no water on October 10 and 11; they remember running out in the first snow on October 26; and they turned out in full force to see what the police were doing at Concord on the April 18 Ad Building bomb scare. It was a year of being cocky on the outside and trembling on the inside, remembering all the tales of things that happened to hold back graduation. They were the ones who were continually figuring hours and quality points. They laughed at the tears of Seniors but, although they didn't notice and probably wouldn't admit it, they weren't the carefree students they had been the previous two years. "To everything there is a season . . ."

Sophomores

With a little more than half their original class number, they came on loud and strong with the sounds that only upper-classmen can muster. They danced to the number one song, "Hey Jude", dared the predicted Hatchett Man to come close to their dorm, and campaigned for presidential and gubernatorial candidates. In Greek their name means "wise fool" and sometimes, no doubt, the name fits. It must have been one of them who sat in the plastic greenery and caused the TV lounge to be closed; it must have been one of them who selected November 4, a day filled with rain, for the anti-Viet Nam War rally; and it could have been no less than a Sophomore who answered the question, "Have you read Eric Fromm?" with, "Eric from where?" The Sanskrit—"Look well to this day, for it is life . . . for yesterday is only a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision, but today well-lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope."

Freshmen

It's the most nervous feeling as you enter the mapled lane fronting Concord for the first time. But soon receptions, lectures, dances, and other Frosh Orientation programs force the upset stomach to leave and a new year begins—really, a new life begins. They were forceful this year, at least in the beginning, with their student action groups. They are the Centennial Senior Class and they seemed to have a special pride in Concord. When Huntington High and Oak Hill were fighting for the state basketball crown their minds returned to former days of school letters, charm bracelets and band festivals, but with the help of pink slips their new world became a reality. Awards day saw them take citizenship, scholastic, and popularity awards; perhaps it was at that time they realized the future of Concord lay in their future. "Some men see things as they are and say why. I dream things that never were and say why not."—Robert Kennedy

It happens suddenly

To look back it doesn't seem like a planned event

It just happens

One morning parents awake to find their child has gone to college.

The emptiness of home
the vacated room
the missing presence at the table
all reinstate the fact that the child has grown.

Spring-past brought high school plays a Senior letter graduation

and the yell, "I've been accepted at Concord!"

Parents for a moment are just as proud just as excited and just as happy, but as September draws near the realization that for the first time they are being separated from their child causes gnawings.

For parents of Frosh it's a new feeling;

For parents of upperclassmen it's a feeling experienced again:

tears—not quite as many but just as wet.

The student becomes involved in campus activities adjusted to classes and acquainted with a new life of almost absolute freedom while the parent evaluates himself and the values, ideals, and standards he attempted to instill.

For the first time in almost twenty years

the telephone becomes silent the music on the piano stays arranged the walls stay clean and a surplus of milk develops.

And there is the knowledge that all things must end and shade into new beginnings.

From "24712" comes "Excuse me for not writing sooner . . . Concord is great . . .
studying is depressing . . . send my tie Dad borrowed for the trip here . . . hope my grades are okay . . . expenses are more than planned . . . we lost the game by one point . . . there is this girl . . . it makes me homesick to write . . . gotta run."

Attending Concord is a privilege and each time a card, form, or information sheet calls for "Parent or Guardian" the name inserted is the person who made this opportunity possible.

The words "Thank you" don't seem to say enough;
"I love you for this" doesn't sound meant,
Yet each parent must know.

And so a page in the '69 PINE TREE carries the message.

... And one day close to the end of my journey I found the joy of remembering.

I looked back and recaptured my times of both victory and defeat . . .

... Recalling the moments that made the time go so fast.

I saw the reflections of the school I love despite the cruel words I uttered while there.

it was over so quickly and my heart yearns to return.

Now, memories must fill the empty walks.

I am leaving . . .

But not forgetting to take with me a part of those days

-- My Concord days.

Alma Mater

HAIL CONCORD COLLEGE, HATS OFF TO YOU EVER YOU'LL FIND US LOYAL AND TRUE FIRM AND UNDAUNTED, ALWAYS WE'LL BE
HAIL TO THE SCHOOL WE LOVE, HERE'S A TOAST TO THEE

. . . remember to remember
